

HONEYBELL ORANGES

Honeybell oranges are exceptionally sweet and juicy citrus fruits which only reach peak ripeness during the month of January. Honeybells are also known as Minneola tangelos, and are actually not oranges at all. They are a hybrid of the Dancy tangerine and either the Duncan or Bowen grapefruit. They are grown in the coldest time of the year in Florida, which makes their season very short. Enjoy these now because they won't be around for another YEAR!
