I am an attorney currently practicing part-time in Cleveland, Ohio. I have been an attorney since 1994 and have years of experience handling cases involving school law and IDEA issues.

From 1994-1999, I served as trial counsel for Nationwide Insurance in Cleveland, Ohio. This position involved the handling of many lawsuits involving school districts around Northeast Ohio.

Beginning in 1994, I served as an Arbitrator and Mediator for courts in Lake, Lorain and Cuyahoga Counties. These cases involved matters such as personal injury, discrimination claims, employment disputes, contractual disputes and large property damage loss issues.

From 1999-2003, I was an attorney with Reminger & Reminger Co., L.P.A. Reminger provided many opportunities to handle IDEA-related issues and due process hearings. During this time I continued arbitrating and mediating cases for the courts, as well as in cases where I was selected by the parties.

Since 2003, I have worked part-time and I remain Of Counsel at Reminger & Reminger. I remain active in the legal community as a member of various Bar organizations, and I also serve on the Sunbeam Board, which helps raise money and awareness for Vocational Guidance Services in Cleveland, Ohio.

I have a lot of experience with various childhood disabilities and how they can affect a child's education. I have also received specific training about autism spectrum disorders and the different diagnostic tools, educational placements and treatments that are available.

I graduated from the Cleveland-Marshall College of Law in 1994, where I served as Research Editor for the Law Review. My publications include "The Present State of Sexual Harassment Law: Perpetuating Post Traumatic Stress Disorder in Sexually Harassed Women" (42 Cleve.St.L.Rev. 301 (1994)). I graduated from Ohio University in 1991 with a B.S. in Communication. I am married and we have three boys.
