This policy is to assist ODE in meeting complaint timelines. The panel had table discussions regarding the policy. ODE is looking at Family and Civic Engagement plans of districts and whether or not they are implementing them. Capacity Building: 12 county core teams; 74 persistently lowest achieving schools; ESCs will house these materials once the grant expires so this important work continues. Elements ODE is developing: professional development curricula and toolkits; training professional development and coaching; community of learners; and data management system.
New Alternate Assessment	Provide a status report on the new alternate assessment	 History: Early 90's only Kentucky and Maryland had a test for the 1% population; 1997, when IDEA was authorized-mandated all students be assessed-primarily by portfolios; 2001 NCLB impact on alternate assessments forced shift from measuring functional skills to content knowledge; Today most states are testing on content using portfolio assessment, checklists and body-of-evidence. Advantages of the proposed adaptive alternate assessment: task-based; test difficulty adapted to student ability; administered and scored by teachers (scores available quickly); high reliability and validity of the scores; aligned to state academic content standards; cheaper than portfolio assessments; and less administration time (about one hour per content area). Training requirements for test administrators: every test administrator will receive training. Ohio's train-the-trainer model will be used. Scoring: the test administrator scores student responses to each item; scores are recorded by the test administrator. Administration and scoring fidelity-a percentage of the assessment will be double scored (once by the teachers and then by a second) to ensure fidelity.

H.B. 96 DYSLEXIA PILOT PROJECT

Introduction

One in five American children has trouble reading. Early intervention programs have proven to be successful in reducing the number of children who become eligible and require special education supports and services. These programs are aimed at children between five and six years old, in kindergarten or first grade, who without such instruction are at high risk for developing reading difficulties. Research shows that direct, explicit, and early instruction in phonemic awareness and phonological processing has proven to address the deficits. High-risk children are those who are likely to develop reading problems because of early language problems, a family history of reading problems, or low scores on a kindergarten screening test.

House Bill 96 signed by Governor Kasich in January 2012 requires the Superintendent of Public Instruction to establish a pilot project involving school districts to provide early screening and intervention services for children with risk factors for dyslexia. The pilot project must operate for three full school years, beginning with the 2012-2013 school year. The specified goal of the pilot project is to evaluate the effectiveness of early screening and reading assistance programs for children with risk factors for dyslexia and to evaluate whether those programs can reduce future special education costs.

The state Superintendent will select six school districts to participate in the pilot project on a voluntary basis. At least one of the districts must be located in an urban setting, one in a suburban setting, and one in a rural setting. To be considered for the pilot project, school district's proposal must:

- (1) Identify a method of screening children for low phonemic awareness and other risk factors for dyslexia,
- (2) Provide for the enrollment of children identified as having risk factors in a reading program staffed by teachers trained in multisensory structured language programs, and
- (3) Include a methodology for evaluating the reading program's effects on the children's identified risk factors.

A selected school district may establish a partnership with a regional library or library system for purposes of the pilot project.

Each school district participating in the pilot project must screen children who are six years old or younger for indications of dyslexia and provide those suspected of having dyslexia with reading intervention services. After providing those early intervention services, the district must administer assessments, approved by the state Superintendent, to determine whether the intervention services have improved students' reading and learning.

When a child is suspected of having dyslexia, the school district must notify the child's parent(s) of that fact and that the child is eligible for reading intervention services through the pilot project. The district must require the parent(s) to indicate in writing that the parent(s) voluntarily and knowingly consent to the child's participation in the pilot project. Moreover, the district must provide the parent(s) information about dyslexia. Finally, each participating district is required to report annually to the state Superintendent about the operation and results of the pilot project to facilitate the Superintendent's evaluation of it.

The bill requires the state Superintendent to evaluate the pilot project and report its results to the General Assembly by December 31, 2014. The report also must contain legislative recommendations whether to continue, expand, or make changes to the pilot project.

For purposes of the H.B. 96 Dyslexia Pilot Project, dyslexia is defined as "a specific learning disorder that is neurological in origin and that is characterized by unexpected difficulties with accurate or fluent word recognition and by poor spelling and decoding abilities not consistent with the person's intelligence, motivation, and sensory capabilities, which difficulties typically result from a deficit in the phonological component of language."

The Ohio Department of Education (ODE) recognizes the importance of early intervention and early identification and the need for districts to have a strategic plan in place. The project period is for three years, and pilot funds are to be used to train staff, integrate evidence-based practices, instructional materials, and implement an effective plan for evaluating the progress made by the participants.

PARENT REQUEST FOR INITIAL EVALUATION LETTER April 2012

Why was this letter created?

Ohio Legal Rights Services (OLRS), Ohio Coalition for the Education of Children with Disabilities (OCECD) and several legal aide offices across the state requested that a template be created for parents of children with suspected disabilities that parents would use to request an initial evaluation for a suspected disability under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act of 2004 (IDEA).

What is the purpose of this letter?

This letter allows parents the opportunity to request an initial evaluation for a suspected disability under IDEA that allows school district personnel to understand exactly what the parent is requesting, to document the beginning of the required timelines and to provide the district with additional background information about the child and the reasons why the parent suspects a disability if the parent chooses to share this information.

How will it be used?

The finalized letter will be shared with parent advocacy agencies and located online at www.edresourcesohio.org so parents will have easy access to this template. During the 2012-2013 content review of Whose IDEA is This? this letter will be included as an optional form. This will allow parents to request an initial evaluation from their school district of residence and do so in a timely and complete way.

Using this Letter to request an evaluation is Not Required; it is presented as an option. It is suggested that a request for an evaluation be in writing and that the receipt of the request be acknowledged by the principal, special education director, or other special education personnel. Ohio Administrative Code, Rule 3301-51-06(B)(3) requires the school district to respond to you in writing within 30 days of receiving your request for an evaluation.
