Directions:

Today you will be taking the Ohio Grade 3 Reading Achievement Test. This is a test of how well you understand what you read. The test consists of vocabulary questions and reading selections followed by questions about each reading selection. Three different types of questions appear on this test: multiple choice, short answer and extended response.

There are several important things to remember:

1. Read each reading selection carefully. You may look back at the reading selection as often as necessary. You may underline or mark parts of any selection.
2. Read each question carefully. Think about what is being asked. If a graph or other diagram goes with the question, look at it carefully to help you answer the question. Then choose or write the answer that you think is best.
3. When you write your answers, write them neatly and clearly in the space provided using a pencil.

Grandma Lena's Radio

Grandma Lena lives a block from our house. This makes me very lucky. When I leave school, I walk to her house. She gives me a snack. Sometimes I stay until dinnertime, until one of my brothers comes to take me home.

I have friends who live in the house next to Grandma Lena. Sometimes I go there to play after my snack. Other times I help Grandma Lena with her chores.

R

I weed her garden or sweep the porch. She tells me about how things were when she was young. She tells me how she and her brothers and sisters didn't have a lot of toys, but they still had fun. They used to play games like freeze tag and hopscotch with their friends. At night, they would catch lightning bugs. In the summer, they slept on the screened porch at night because it was cooler than the house.

When Grandma Lena says, "Renny, come help in the garden," I don't get mad. I know that I am going to hear a story. Grandma Lena and I get our gloves and tools and work together. She waters the flowers. I pull out all of the weeds. Then Grandma Lena tells me a story. The last time, she told me about the big wooden radio with the yellow push buttons. She said it belonged to her grandmother.

Grandma Lena says that people used to sit around and listen to the radio the way that we watch television. They would sit in the living room and listen to stories being acted out. They would listen to live concerts and news of the world. They also listened to baseball games and weather reports. I try to imagine what it would be like having only a radio to listen to and no television to watch. I ask Grandma Lena if the radio was boring, and she tells me that people thought it was fantastic. It took a long time for television to catch on because people liked their radios so much.

I ask if we could turn on the radio. I am surprised that it still works! I push one of the buttons and the radio goes to Grandma Lena's favorite station. I ask her where I plug in the headphones, and Grandma Lena laughs.

The Smallest Life Around Us

by Lucia Anderson

Tiny plants and animals live all around us. We cannot see them because they are so small, but they are everywhere.

They live in the soil, the air, and in rivers and oceans. They grow on the highest mountains and in the deepest caves. Some live in the ice at the north and south poles; some live where it is very hot. They are found throughout cities and in the country. They grow on other plants and animals. Some are even living on you, on your skin, hair, and inside your body, in your mouth, nose, and all through your intestines.

These tiny plants and animals are called microbes. The word microbe is made from two other words: micro, meaning small, and bios, meaning life. So, microbe means small life.

Microbes have been on earth for a very long time. They may have been the first forms of life to exist. Today there are more microbes in the world than all other living things.

For thousands of years people did not know microbes existed. They were too small for them to see.

But people did see many changes in their world—important changes. And they did not know what caused them. They saw food that they kept too long change color and begin to smell bad. They saw cuts and wounds grow red and sore and become infected. They saw old plants and leaves and trees crumble apart on the forest floor and disappear into the soil. Such changes were a natural part of the world, but people did not understand them. They did
